

Sustainable Design: Why and How?

Presented By HKT Architects Inc. & The Green Roundtable

Wednesday • 4.25.07 • 7:30 pm

Wellesley Community Center

219 Washington Street

Wellesley Hills, MA

www.wellesleyconservationcouncil.org

Sustainable design in your home saves energy and protects health. For these same reasons, municipalities, states and the federal government have adopted policies around sustainable design and construction. Colleges and universities, non-profit organizations and corporations also have sustainability policies that govern how they build and operate buildings. Why is sustainable design important, even imperative? This program will feature Barbra Batshalom (The Green Roundtable) on the ways green residential design can make a difference in reducing energy costs and increasing quality of life in our communities. Bill Hammer and Eric Kluz (HKT Architects) will present case studies of green municipal buildings for Boston, Cambridge and Lexington, as well as the green Doyle Conservation Center for The Trustees of Reservations.

The Doyle Center, The Trustees of Reservations, HKT Architects Inc.

HKT Architects is a planning and architecture firm specializing in sustainable design for municipalities and state agencies, educational institutions, and non-profit conservation and cultural organizations.
www.bktarchitects.com.

The Green Roundtable is a nonprofit organization whose mission is to mainstream sustainable development through strategic programs in education, policy and technical assistance. Green Roundtable also runs the region's only Residential Green Building Program, Green Homes North East (GHNE) profit conservation and cultural organizations.
www.greenroundtable.org

Cambridge City Hall Annex, City of Cambridge, HKT Architects Inc.

Slide presentation co-sponsored with

Wellesley Natural Resources Commission

www.wellesleyma.virtualtownhall.net/Pages/WellesleyMA_NRC/index

SMART Wellesley (Sustainable Management of Appropriate Resources and Technology)

smartwellesleyschools@yahoo.com